

ACCT100: Principles of Accounting I

Managerial accounting is primarily concerned with generating financial and non-financial information for use by managers for decision making. This course will enable students to compare and contrast managerial accounting with financial accounting, identify ethical issues in accounting and describe various costing processes within the organization. Throughout the course, a managerial viewpoint is stressed.

Credit Hours: 3